

Background working paper for presentation at the International Conference on the Impact of Natural Disasters--Agenda for the Future, Session on Mental Health Issues, July 10, 1991, University of California, International Studies and Overseas Programs, Los Angeles, California.

Injury and Psychological Distress Following the Whittier Narrows and Loma Prieta Earthquakes*

Linda B. Bourque

Carol S. Aneshensel

James D. Goltz

Southern California Injury Prevention Research Center
School of Public Health
University of California, Los Angeles

Southern California Earthquake Preparedness Project

*Data collection was supported with funds from the National Science Foundation (#62617 and BCS-9002754), the Natural Hazards Research and Application Center (Purchase Order 494933C1), the Earthquake Engineering Research Institute (EERI M880411), and the National Center for Earthquake Engineering Research (Purchase Order R34779).

Data analysis was supported by an award from the Southern California Injury Prevention Research Center under the auspices of the Public Health Service Centers for Disease Control center grant (#R49/CCR903622).

Not for quotation or attribution without prior permission of the authors.