

Disaster Preparedness and Mitigation

Rarely in the recent history of the Americas have so many and such destructive natural disasters occurred in the same year as they did in 1998. Despite the seriousness of the damage, the affected countries responded exceptionally well, and the health sector in particular played a leading role.

Info