

supply card

supply card

supply card

supply card

supply card

supply card

supply card

supply card

supply card

supply card

task card

task card

task card

task card

task card

task card

Through contests and public exhibits, children around the world use drawings to say what they think about disasters. Here are examples of how children are communicating through art, and some ideas for you and your friends.

1. Draw a Recent Disaster

These two drawings show how people in the Philippines acted in disasters in the 1990s. What do these pictures tell you?

For you and your classmates

Have you experienced a disaster recently? Draw what happened, and discuss with your classmates.

Katherine Mae H. Palles, Age 12, P. Burgos Elementary School, Metro Manila, Philippines

Richmond Nitro, Age 10, Mabini Elementary School, Manila, Philippines

Shown at the World Conference on Natural Disaster Reduction, a 1994 United Nations conference in Yokohama, Japan.